Profile

As a highly motivated Full Stack Web Developer with a strong foundation in Django, React, MongoDB, and PostgreSQL, I bring extensive experience in collaborative project development and a passion for continuous learning. Currently studying Artificial Intelligence at Lviv Polytechnic National University, I excel in teamwork and embrace new challenges. My diverse interests, including volleyball and reading, have cultivated a well-rounded skill set, and my fluency in English enables me to thrive in international environments. I am keenly interested in data science and actively seek opportunities to apply my skills and knowledge within this domain as I advance my career.

Employment History

Freelancer

2022 — 2023

In the past year, as a freelance full-stack web developer, I have successfully delivered few projects for diverse clients, focusing on e-commerce, small business websites, and custom web applications. Also I have created my own backend-oriented projects using Django, to get really advanced with this language and learn how to implement many features modern websites use. You are welcome to peruse my portfolio on my individual website, the link to which I have provided below for your reference.
